FLEXIBLE EXHAUST REPAIR PIPES

Clampco supply Exhaust Flexible Repair Pipes to suit most makes & models of vehicles. Our exhaust flexible pipes are made of a stainless steel outer braid with interlock (internal corrugated stainless steel) inner lining. The ends are made from aluminised steel for ease of welding and protection against corrosion.

The flexible pipes can be used to either repair your standard exhaust system or can be used with your performance exhaust system as an upgrade.

We offer two types of flexible pipe. The standard Interlock version comes with short stub ends that are designed to be welded into place. The other version is the 'Tube ended' type which can be easily clamped into place or cut to size and welded into place if need be.

DELTA ADHESIVES

Why use DELTA thread locking adhesive?

DELTA thread locking adhesives prevent self-loosening and secure threaded fasteners against vibration, unwanted movements, leaks and corrosion. They are a single component liquid which cures at room temperature when applied between steel, brass, aluminium and most other metals, they cure in the absence of air and fill gaps between threads and joints.
